

Authors and Editors

Ruth Becker

Ruth Becker is Professor for Women's and Housing Studies in Urban Planning at the Technische Universität Dortmund and has been the director of the Women's Research Network NRW's Coordination Office since 1998. She is also the editor of "Zeitschrift für Frauenforschung & Geschlechterstudien" (The Journal for Women and Gender Studies).

Beate Binder

Beate Binder is a European Ethnologist/Cultural Anthropologist and is a professor at the Department of Folklore and Cultural Anthropology at the Universität Hamburg. Previously, she worked as a research assistant at the Department of European Ethnology at the Humboldt Universität zu Berlin where she completed her habilitation with her book: "Streitfall Stadtmitte. Historische Narrative, geschichtspolitische Interventionen und die Produktion von Lokalität: Stadtethnologische Perspektiven auf ein Berliner Konfliktfeld". Her current areas of interest include city ethnology, gender research and political anthropology.

Allaine Cerwonka

Allaine Cerwonka is Professor of Gender Studies and Head of the Department of Gender Studies at Central European University in Budapest. She teaches courses on feminist theory, the body and feminist epistemologies. She has written two books entitled, "Native to the Nation: Disciplining Landscapes and Bodies in Australia" (University of Minnesota Press, 2004) and "Improvising Theory: Process and Temporality in Ethnographic Fieldwork" (with Liisa Malkki, University of Chicago Press, 2007)

Maryanne Dever

Associate Professor Maryanne Dever is currently President of the Australian Women's and Gender Studies Association (AWGSA) and holds a position in the Centre for Women's Studies & Gender Research at Monash University (Melbourne) where she was Centre Director from 1999-2007. A fuller discussion of the findings from the study presented here can be found in 'Women's Studies and the Discourse of Vocationalism: Some New Perspectives' in Women's Studies International Forum 27.5/6 (2004), 475-88 and "'I Don't Know Where This Will Take Me": Rethinking Study/Work Relationships for Women's Studies Students' in Women's Studies Quarterly 30.3/4 (2002), 256-70. She is currently researching gender differentials in early academic career development.

Capitolina Díaz Martínez

Capitolina Díaz Martínez has a degree in Sociology from the Complutense University of Madrid and a PhD from London University. She has been working on topics related to Education Sociology, Gender Sociology, the New Information and Communication Technologies and Methodology of Social Science. She has carried out research in those fields with national and international teams and has published books, chapters and articles on all of them as well as directed several doctoral theses. She is a professor of Sociology at Oviedo University and has been a visiting professor at the Universities of Stanford (USA), UAM (Mexico), Moa (Cuba) and El Comahue (Argentina). She is a member of the Women's Study Seminar of Oviedo University and of the Executive Committee of the European Sociology Association. Currently she is the Director of the Unidad de Mujeres y Ciencia (Women and Science Unit), in Spain's Ministry of Education and Science.

Sabine Grenz

Sabine Grenz holds a PhD in Gender Studies and is currently working on her post-doctorate at Göteborgs Universitet. Based on diaries from 1945, she is conducting research there on the re-construction of feminine nationality at the end of World War II. Previously, she was a post-doctoral fellow in the research training group "Gender as a Category of Knowledge" (2005-2006) at Humboldt Universität zu Berlin. She also organized the "5th European Conference on Gender Equality" (2007) and together with Susanne Baer, published the brochure "Women in the Humanities: Sobering Statistics and Inspiring Role Models". Furthermore, she has been an active member of the Athena Network (a European network for Gender Studies) since 2002.

Bettina Jansen-Schulz

Bettina Jansen-Schulz has a doctorate in Educational Sciences and works with her own company as a research and project manager (TransferConsult, Lübeck) for various German states and universities. Her main focuses are: gender and technology and gender in university didactics. Currently she is working as a research and conceptual advisor in the "Gender Competency" project and with regards to university teaching methods at Leuphana Universität Lüneburg. In addition, she has worked collaboratively with the "Gender Aspects in the Accreditations Process of the new Tiered Programs" project at the Universität Dortmund (Women's Research Network) and as a consultant for projects at the Technische Universität Berlin on integrating gender in teaching. She is also developing concepts for a series of lectures on gender and for a conference on gender for the Hochschule für angewandte Wissenschaft und Kunst Hildesheim.

Gabriele Jähnert

Gabriele Jähnert has a PhD in Germanics. Since 1991, she has been the executive director of the Centre for Interdisciplinary Women's Studies (ZiF) and since 2003, the Centre for Transdisciplinary Gender Studies at the Humboldt Universität zu Berlin (HU). She is also one of the co-initiators of the Gender Studies Masters programme at the HU. In her function as director, she supports the communication between academics in various disciplines and supports their initiatives. Moreover, through her active engagement in education policy she promotes the further establishment of Gender Studies.

Beate Kortendiek

Beate Kortendiek holds a PhD in Sociology and has been the co-ordinator of the Women's Research Network NRW at the Technische Universität Dortmund since 1998. Her current research interests focus on how the Bologna Process effects universities and colleges as well as embedding gender aspects in teaching and research. In addition to publishing the "Journal Netzwerk Frauenforschung NRW" and the "Handbuch Frauen- und Geschlechterforschung", she also works as an editor for the "Zeitschrift für Frauenforschung & Geschlechterstudien".

Ilona Pache

Ilona Pache completed her doctorate in Linguistics. She has been working at the Centre for Transdisciplinary Gender Studies at the Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin since 2001. Her responsibilities there include co-ordinating the various programmes (Bachelor, Master and Magister in Gender Studies), as well as planning, expanding and ensuring the quality of the curricula and programme counselling. In her recent publications she deals with questions concerning the ambivalences of institutionalization as well as programme restructuring in Gender Studies.

Jeannette van der Sanden

Jeannette van der Sanden is a PhD student at the Research Institute for Culture and History at Utrecht University, the Netherlands. The topic of her dissertation is the transfer of knowledge about sex and gender from academia to society. She has an MA in Social Sciences with a specialization in Women's Studies. She was a researcher in the project 'Employment and Women's Studies: The Impact of Women's Studies Training on Women's Employment in Europe' (EWSI) within the EU 5th Framework Programme.

Gudrun Schäfer

Gudrun Schäfer holds a PhD in Journalism and works as a freelance consultant with TransResearch (providing consultation for public relations as well as transferring research results, Bochum) and the Universität Paderborn (Faculty for Electrical Engineering, Informatics and Mathematics).

Regina Weber

Regina Weber is currently studying Law and Political Science at the Universität Potsdam and is a member of the board for the National Union of Students in Germany (fsz) 2007/08. From May 2006 to December 2007 she was a member of the European Students Union's (ESU) Gender Equality Committee.