

Marianna Szczygielska is a Postdoctoral Fellow at the Max Planck Institute for the History of Science (MPIWG) in Berlin. She received her Ph.D. in Comparative Gender Studies at the Central European University in Budapest. Marianna's doctoral project examined how the concepts of nature, animality, and humanness have been and continue to be constructed in relation to sexuality, gender, and race through the establishment of modern zoological gardens. At the MPIWG she is a member of "The Body of Animals" working group in Department III Artifacts, Knowledge, Action. She has published on zoos and gender, scientific research on hormones, relations between affect, transgender, and animal studies.
